In this webinar...

In these rapidly changing times it is critical for individuals as well as organizations to take time to live in the moment. Unfortunately, the current moment is packed with turbulence, ambiguity and lack of security. The question becomes, how do we live, learn and lead in these turbulent times.

This session will help all participants, no matter what their background, what their role, what their longevity with the organization may be, in analyzing what they can do to seize the moment and learn to live in what has been deemed "Permanent Whitewater."

After participating in this session, individuals will be able to:

- Check their "radar" to see what is causing turbulence in their roles
- Understand and utilize three principles to learn, live and lead in turbulent times
- Identify issues that can be controlled and influenced while setting uncontrollable issues aside
- Recognize opportunities to help others deal with turbulent times

The presenter...

Todd McDonald has been in the human resource and training industry for over 20 years. He served as executive vice president for American Media Inc., where he worked for 10 years in multiple capacities including management of the product development, human resource, training, marketing, and sales areas.

In 1999, he left AMI and founded ATW Training & Consulting.

He has created over 500 off-the-shelf training products dealing with subjects such as management, leadership, communications skills, legal issues, customer service and more.

He is the author of two books: "I Wish You Would Just..." and "How to Find 100 Extra Minutes a Day."
